Dozens of the standing public watched the Committee vote

In 2014 the amendment bill to Worker Dispatch Law was scrapped twice due to an error in the provisions by the Health, Labor and Welfare Ministry or to the dissolution of the House of Representatives. The bill was approved by the House Committee in the morning of June 19, 2015 and the House Diet session passed it in the afternoon with a majority vote by the governing parties.

As an activity against deteriorative amendment to the labor law system I attended the House Committee. About 60 seats allowed for the public were full of press, dispatched workers
