YAMASHITA Kikuji "Tribute" (1969)

The Emperor's message of August 8 was against the Constitution

Degeneration of ideas and thoughts of liberalists confused by the words and deeds of the Emperor

YAMASHITA Isao, Chairman, National Steering Committee of Shiso-Undo

It was in the morning of July 13 that "the intent of abdication" by the Emperor was reported, as if it took the chance of a more than 2/3 majority of the forces, in the House of Councilors, for amendment to the Constitution, was confirmed in its election. Who and for what leaked the information at that timing? The first report came from the NHK public broadcasting, now converted into an agent for the power authority. It was not a mystery that a far-sighted thought by the regime's axis was suspected for opening a breakthrough for an express amendment to the Constitution. Many guesses appeared and rippled out. The background and intention became seen dimly and slowly, and it became clear gradually that the subject has been smoldering around the Emperor and his surroundings since 2015.

The Imperial Household Agency announced that a prerecorded video message by the Emperor's own voice would be delivered to the nation, and it was released on August 8.

Through his voice message, it became clear that there have been variances on ideas on the system of the emperor as
