We Protest Against the Decision to Release "Tritium-contaminated Water" into the Ocean!

The Government Should Stop Making a Sacrifice of Fukushima!

TSUNODA Masashi

(Joint-Representative of Peace Forum of Fukushima Prefecture)

On April 13, 2021, the government decided to release the tritium-contaminated water into the ocean. The fishery industry and other producers opposed the hasty decision of the ocean discharge and called for a study to ensure safety and security. They requested the government to consider multiple plans besides the ocean discharge to secure their livelihood and safety in the future. We, the people of the Fukushima Prefecture, standing in the position of the producers, also opposed the government's plan and called for the government to do further study and to gain our understanding. But the government still clings to its decision of "the ocean discharge" by saying it also reduces costs.

The Term "Security"
the Government Repeat Is Different from "Safety"!

The government has repeated an incomprehensible logic: "Tritium-contaminated water is being released from nuclear power plants all over the country and the world. Both the tritium-contaminated water from the damaged nuclear power plants and the discharged water from the now operating nuclear power plants are the same. So there is no problem if it is discharged after being diluted. Discharging tritium-contaminated water
